

Opened a photovoltaic panel installation company and was cheated

Overview

If you believe you have been cheated in a solar photovoltaic deal, it is essential to act swiftly and systematically. Begin by documenting all interactions and agreements related to your solar installation. These scams involve deceptive sales tactics, forged contracts, misrepresented government incentives, hidden financing fees, and phantom installations. The New York City Department of Consumer and Worker Protection filed a lawsuit against Radiant Solar, accusing the solar company of defrauding more than 350 New York homeowners. Many buyers finance their solar panels with loans — often counting on a federal tax credit to offset part of the upfront cost — and expect to see years of lower. Statistically speaking, companies installing photovoltaic panels have called probably every Pole at least once, including children. However, the President of the Office of Competition and.
